ANNIVERSARY WEEK IN NEW YORK

FOURTH DAY.

American Home Missionary Society. American Home Missionary Society was held at the Tabernacle, Broadway. The President, Henry Dwight, Esq., in the chair.

The meeting, which was not very numerous, having been opened by prayer, Jasper Corning, Esq., read the Treasurer's report, from which it appeared that more than one-third of those who were present at the organization of the Society a quarter of a century since, have ceased from their labors. Death has also removed, the last year, Rev. Calvin Chapin, D. D., and Rev. David Porter, D. D., Vice Presidents of the Society; Rev. Henry White, D. D., one of its directors; Knowles Taylor, Esq., D. D., one of its directors; knowles Taylor, 1-34, its former Treasurer; and Rev. Washington Thacher, the agent of the Society in Central New York. The Society has had in its service the last year 1,065 ministers of the Gospel, in 26 different States and territories in this New England States, 311; the Middle States, 224; the Southern States, 15; the Western States and territories, 515. Of these, 640 have been the pastors or stated supplies of single congregations; and 425 have occupied larger fields. Four have ministered to congregations of colored people; and 41 have preached in forcign languages—10 to Welsh, and 29 to German congregations; and two to congregations supplied, in whole or in part, 1,820; and the aggregate of ministerial service performed, is equal to 833 years. The pupils in Sabbath schools and Bible classes amount to 70,000. There have been added to the churches 6,678, viz.: 3,855 by profession, and 2,823 by letter. Many of the Western churches have been visited. Seventy-seven missionaries make mention in their reports of revivals of religion in congregations, and 335 report 3,936 hopeful conversions. The balance in the treasury, April 1st, 1850, was $15,533 69. The receipts of the succeeding twelve months have been $150,940 25; making the resources of the year, $16,483 94. There was due to missionaries, at the date of the last report, $11,825 77. There has since become due, $151,515 41; making the total of liabilities $163,451 18. Of this sum, 133,817 9 have been paid. The remainder, $3,633 28, is still due to missionaries for labor performed. To wards liquidating these claims and redeeming the additional pledges on commissions which have not yet expired—making, in all, $64, 206 49—there is a balance in the treasury of $12,676 04—the greater part of which was received near the close of the year, and is available only as a means of enneelling the present indebtedness of the society to its missionaries. Thirty-three more missionaries have been in commission than in any preceding year, and this its former Treasurer; and Rev. Washington Tha cher, the agent of the Society in Central New York.

had been reared and nurtured by its instrumentality, have passed from the list of beneficiaries, and are now supporting their own Gospel institutions; some of which are among the strongest and most influential churches in the land.

The Rev. Militors Barberr, D. D., one of the secretaries, then read the report of the executive committee. The report gives detailed statements of the prompt and liberal manner in which the riews of the executive committee have been seconded by the local boards of agency, and by the State and other auxiliaries. While nearly all evines their activity by an increased number of missionaries and of churches assisted, they all report a larger number than in any previous year as having become independent of foreign aid. The sound and healthy growth of the missions is seen in the number and value of the houses of worship erected, in the increasing energy of measures to promote temperance, in the estabilishment of Sanday and week-day schools, and, in general, in the yearly progress of whatever promotes the stability of the churches and the order of society. This record of the labors of the year completes the history of this society for a quarter of a century. Within this period, how has the field of its operations extended, and its work increased! Our frontier has receded from the banks of the Ohio to the shores of the Pacific. Seven States have been added to our confederacy, and 12,000,000 to our population. In all the elements of national importance, we have made unparalleled progress; and the work appropriate to this society has increased in like proportion. And, though it has not accomplished all that with greater resources it might have accomplished, yet the wide fields where it has gathered rich harvests for Christ—the multitudes to whom it has distributed the bread of life—the 3,000 churches it has aided, and the 100,000 souls it has gathered into the fold of the Great Shepherd, testify that it has not labored in vain. In the prospective growth of our country for another quarter of a century, we forsee the accumulating responsibilities of this society. While, in the older States, it must "be watchful and strengthen the things that remain that are ready to die," it must also go forth "bearing precious seed," with the advancing tide of emigration, as it rolls toward the setting sun. In planting Gospel institutions in our great central valley, and on the shores of the Pacific, a work is to be done for Christ, such as he has entrusted to no other people. It must not be delayed. To this work let the friends of the Redeemer gird themselves anew. Encouraged by his past favor and the promise of his presence and aid, let them prosecute this enterprise with increasing zeal and on a more extended scale.

The Rev. I. P Langwormy, of Chelsea, Mass., in proposing the resolution—in proposing the resolution—

That the reports now presented, be adopted and pubished, under the direction of the Executive Committee, urged upon the meeting the necessity of increasing the members, and augmenting the funds, of the Society.

The resolution was seconded by General Will-

The resolution was seconded by General Wil-Liams, of Connecticut.

The Rev. J. B. Shaw, of Rochester, N. Y., then proposed the following resolution:

That our home missionaries, possessing, as they do, the true martyr spirit, are doing a great work for the church and the country, and on that account are entitled to the sympathy and gratitude, the prayers and the co-opera-tion, of every patriot and Christian.

tion, of every patriot and Christian.

The reverend gentleman, in his observations, while submitting this resolution, illustrated the labors and the sacrifices of the home missionaries, for the general benefit of the Christian community, and energetically called upon the meeting to aid and sustain the home missionaries.

Dr. Smith seconded the resolution.

A hymn was then sung by the congregation, after which the Hon. James Meacham, of Vermont, proposed the following resolution:—

That the friends of home missions should see that the Gospel ministry keep pace with the settlements in our new territories.

In an able speech, the hon, gentleman gave it as Gespel ministry keep pace with the settlements in our new territories.

In an able speech, the hon, gentleman gave it as his opinion, that if we are to maintain this free land, which our forefathers have given us, we must maintain a Christian morality, and we should send gospel ministers to our new territories.

The Rev. ERNJAMN W. CHIDLAW, of Cincinnati, seconded the resolution, and alluded to the immense emigration to this country from all parts of Europe. Thousands of emigrants are settling in the West and in our foreign territeries, and it is in reference to those that the American Missionary Sosiety has sent out her ministers. There are amongst those emigrants two hundred thousand Welch alone settled in the United States. These are the people which this association is looking after—whom they are seeking to save; and, he asked, was it not an enterprise which Christians would encourage, and which God would bless?

Another hymn was then sung, and, after a benediction, the congregation separated, and the society proceeded to elect officers for the ensuing year.

The National Temperance Society of the City of New York celebrated its first anniversary at Tripler Hall, last evening. That spacious building was filled almost to its capacity on the occasion, a great portion of the audience being ladies. A fine band discoursed eloquent music from the opening of the Hall until the commencement of the exercises. The arrangements for the reporters of the press were all that could be desired. It would be agreeable to reporters if as good accommodations were extended to them in other places.

The proceedings of the evening were opened by a prayer by the Rev. Dr. WATERMAN, of Providence, after which the Secretary read the report, of which the following is an abstract:—

The Board of Directors give thanks to the Giver of all good, for the privilege of taking part in the work of redeeming the world from intemperance. As temperance had a heavenly origin, and tends only to bloss mankind, it must ultimately universally prevail. Yet we look only more blessing upon was and vigorous efforts; and if must intimately universally prevail. Tee we follow and to this work should be devoted a full quota of time, thought, effort, prayer, and free-will offering. The object of the properties and consentrated offer. The Society has been in operation seven months, and has circulated granticously ten thousand copies of the Monthly Remperance Recorder, and over fifty thousand tracts. It has also commenced a series of monthly spectings in the Tabernacle and in Tripler Hall and proposes such a demonstration quarterly. It has also commenced a series of monthly spectings in the churches, to ducuse the duty of Christians in regard to the license system. That measure of the Society which excites the deepest interest, is the egablishment of an anylum for inchristes. Many of the facts connected with the reform at the Five Points, are already before the public. This work has been directed and managed mainly by Rev. L. M. Fease, who was sent there as a missionary by the Laddies' Missionary Society. last winter, the Home has had a great many diffi-culties to encounter. At one time he had not a single dollar in his possession, while there were some sixty persons depending on him for three meals a day. Within a short time, the National Temperance Society adopted the Home as its child, and thereby relieved the speaker of a vast amount of anxiety and responsibility. Mr. Peass gave some instances of the happy influence of the Asylum at the Five Points, and the beneficent effects which have already flown from the missionary movement in that dark region of our city. He gave several instances of the conversion of men who had been drunkards for twenty years, but who are now re-spectable and industrious members of society, supgrankards for twenty years, but who are now respectable and industrious members of society, supporting themselves comfortably, one of them having, within a few months, actually saved the sum of $100, which is deposited in the Savings' Bank of the Asylum. He concluded by appealing to the public to support the mission in the Five Points.

The Rev. J. E. Weightman, of New Jersey, said The Rev. J. E. Weightman, of New Jersoy, said it afforded him great pleasure to see such a vast to umber of faces before him. He had looked back to the origin of the temperance cause, and looked forward to the time when this world would become a second Paradise, through the influence of the temperance movement. It is asked by some, why should the friends of temperance confine the aselves to discountenancing rum drinking alone? There is intemperance in eating as well as in drinking. He admitted this; but gluttony does not make a man beat his wife, nor does it cat away a man's substance, as drunkenness does. Sinful as gluttony is, its effects on all classes of society cannot be compared to those of intemperance and the traffic in objects of the society, he said that drunkards can be reformed and made good citizens, and there was no doubt that the dark cloud which now rests over the Five Points, can be dissipated. The enemy has been assailed in his stronghold, and if he has not been killed outright, he has certainly been wounded. Mr. Pease must be a second Howard, to have undertaken the work in which he is capaged. Other addresses were made during the evening, and a handsome sum of money collected for the support of the cause.

The Socretary's report states that general prosperity has attended the various departments of the work of the society during the year, and that the smiles of a kind Providence have afforded continued cause for gratitude. The association, with its auxiliaries, has now been sustained during a period of seventeen years, its various operations ever involving continued responsibility and untiring care and effort. One of its chief aims, from the beginning to the present time, has been to reach by moral and Christian influences, that class in society peculiarly exposed to all the miscries of moral and physical degradation and want, viz. young females and children, whom untoward circumstances have placed upon the list of the "homeless and friendless." A question ever present with its managers has been "How shall we help to inspire in the minds of this class self-respect and a just self-reliance, the love and the pravice of industry and virtue, and stimulate those who would mislead the unwary to higher aims and holier purposes!" To this end the society sustains a press whose issues advocate the principles of truth, purity, and rightcourness, and the pressing claims of the needy. They also sustain what may appropriately betermed missionary labors among the poor of the city," by which means, in the words of Job, the cause that they know not is searched out, and the exposures and necessities of the deserving better understood and judiciously met. At their publishing and register office, 36 Park row, the names of worthy applicants for employment are recorded, friendly commet for employment are recorded, friendly commet given to the stranger, the wanderer, the destitate, and, in some cases, much needed aid to those who we hearts have been made unspeakably desolate. Growing out of the manifest necessities of the work, is found now in successful operation, the institution known as the "House of Industry and Home for the Friendless," with its numerous facilities for more extended and successful effort than was once ever anticipated. The statisties given in the report, are as follows:—Issues from the press, during the year, 14,000 copies of the Advicate and Guardian, semi-monthly; 1,000 copies of "Woman as Sho Was, Is, and Should be," 10,000 tracts, from four to twelve pages each; 3,000 copies of "Woman as Sho Was, Is, and Should be," 10,000 tracts, from four to twelve pages each; 3,000 copies of "Advice to Bomestics;" 1,000 "pstitions in behalf of street oblideren;" 380 "Certificates of Life Membership," and 1,000 copies of "Rules and By-lawsfor use of Homo Committee." The gratuitous distribution of the society's publications has averaged over 10,000 pages per month—an agency through which their work and their wants become widely known advantage preciated, and their facilities for obtaining affaces homes for the homeless greatly increased applications for situations, employment, &c., at the office of register, during the year, hare bean-adults, 1,173; children, 87; 315 of the former, and 21 of the latter, have been sent thence to good situations.

christian hearts the compassion that may save them from a deep perdition—shall they plead in vain?

The Childden of the Home then sung a hymn, while the Rev. Dr. Cleveland, of Providence, apologized to the congregation for the absonce of the Rev. Geo. B. Cheever, the Rev. Mr. Beecher, tha Rev, Mr. Taggart, and the Rev. Dr. Tugg. He (the Rev. Mr. Cleveland,) stated that he had been requested by the ladies of the society, to say a few words, in the absence of the above named gentlemen, who had promised to attend. He said he remembered that the first two cr three sermons he preached in Boston were in behalf of a similar institution, whose matron had grown so infirm, that, though she was compelled to be wheeled about in her chair, she did not cease her labors of love. The reverend gentleman reminded his hearers of a Saviour's compassion for a fallen woman, and that he bid her go and sin no mace; and that the ladies of this society were endeavoring to rescue from sin and wretchedness, want, experience and temptation, not only those who have sinted, but they provide a home for the young, and still innocent, helpless children. He concluded bidding them, with all his heart, God-speed.

The children again sung, during which exercise the Rev. Dr. Typa made his appearance. He commerced an address to the congregation, by saying that he was sorry to appear so like one of the spirite of the vasty deep—called for, but not forthcomise and even when he arrived there, he felt that he was more fit to appear as Ruth, in sec corner of the field, gleaning, than as Bonz, custing down the corn. and even when he arrived there, he felt that he was more fit to appear as Ruth, in the corner of the field, gleaning, than as Bona, custing down the corn. He said further, that he had been requested by the ladies of the society to say something, because he had been a simple but true-hearted friend from its foundation, and would remain so, please God, to the end. He observed that in this meeting they had nothing exciting to present to their bearers—no political ranti-slavery topics, such as are at this time stirring up the hearts of the community; but simply an object of benevolence—a desire to save those immortal souls who otherwise would have been sinking in the streets. A few faithful ladies observed that in their desire to resease the weethed from ruin, they had begun absolutely at the wrong end. It was like salting the stream; and they found that the effect any good end, they must begin at the beginning; and thus it is that these little children are provided with a home and instruction. The roverend gentleman here made some comments on the difference of the present meeting and the prospects of the society to the first anniversary they had held. He then spoke in praise of the steady principles, unfailing constancy, and unremitting attention of the ladies who composed and sustain the society. He said they had met with great discouragement, inasmuch as the majority of people are little interested in those who are unfriended and houreless in this city. The first idea of these ladies was simply to find a temperary home for those thus unfortunately situated; but its design has been greatly extended. Newton remarked that no man had lived in vein, who takes but one small item from the heap of wretchedness, and adds it to that of happiness. The reverend gestle man deplored the many difficulties which each year adds to this society; for, as it is no lenger a new institution, all enthusiasm is dying away, and only those who supported it at first from principle, remain as ferromay interested as ever. Among these latter Anniversary Exhibition of the New York Institution for the Blind. The regular annual exhibition of the pupils oe the New York Institution for the Blind, was hold at the Tabernacle yesterday afternoon. At least three thousand persons were present, nine-tanths of whom were ladies. Indeed, there was a greater display of female beauty present at this exhibition, day. The pupils of the institution, viz., fifty-two. males, fifty-three females, and thirty-nine grady-ates of both sexes, were present—the females dressed all in white—and occupied the places usually appropriated to the members of the erchystra, and within the full view of the audience. Their ages varied from six years to twenty-one and two.

After the preliminary exercises, the pupils of the Institution were tried in their studies, their progress in which was so perfect that the vast assemblage were lost in wonderment and astonishment. Indeed, those who were not present can form but a faint idea of the perfection to which the instruction and edification of the blind have been brought, by this most excellent institution. We might almost sag that less of gight is not, box a-days, thanks to the
